SOPHOMORE'S "INTERCELLULAR" TOPS

Sophomore Benefit

Monroe Hall was converted into a jail on Friday and Saturday nights, March 23 and 24. The occasion was Intercellular, the Sophomore Benefit.

Directed by Pat Ellis, Intercellular told the story of Mr. Van Remington who was trying to bail his son, Rodney, out of jail. He succeeded in freeing both Rodney and an acquaintance of his son, Susan. After leaving the jail, Mr. Van Remington discovered that he had left his wallet. He returned but was unable to find the wallet because Charlie Club, a detective, had picked it up with the intention of giving it back to Harrison. A telephone call telling the detective that there was to be a raid on Hernandez's Hideaway made Charlie Club forget to return the wallet. Mr. Van Remington accused Willie, the janitor, of taking his wallet and had Harrison, the jailor, press charges against him. Willie decided the only thing for him to do was to quit his job. The people in jail gave a farewell party for Willie. During the party Rodney and Susan were brought back to jail after being caught in the raid on Hernandez's Hideaway. The party ended with Willie singing his own song.

As Willie was saying his good-byes, Mr. Van Remington came in. Rodney and his father got into an argument. Willie broke the argument up and sang his song, "There's a Way." As Willie started to leave, Mr. Van Remington began to apologize. Charlie Club came in with the wallet. Willie was cleared and all was well as the cast sang the grand finale.

The main characters in Intercellular were: Willie, Pat Briley; Mr. Van Remington, Harriet Ayers; Harrison, Toots Massie; Sgt. Logan, Pete Dallas; Rodney, Dennis Moriarty; Susan, Betty Kell; and Charlie Club, Joan Pillsbury.

Phyll Bailey was assistant director; Joan Dickey, stage manager; Peggy Kelley, music director; and Semmie Simons and Mary Temple, choreographers.

Mendel Museum Sold by Curator To Univ. of Illinois

The Mendel Museum at Mary Washington College has been sold to the University of Illinois by the curator, Mrs. Hugo N. Iltis, widow of its founder.

The world-famed genetics exhibits, formerly located in the basement of the college library, was moved last week to the genetics department of the University of Illinois.

The museum—in honor of the 19th century monk Gregor Mendel, whose studies laid the basis of modern genetics—was founded in 1939 by the late Dr. Iltis after he escaped from Nazis to this country, bringing art of a Czechoslovakian exhibit saved from German spoils.

Mrs. Iltis, who pointed out that Illinois has a large expanding genetics department, said she had consulted with a number of biological experts before deciding on the sale. Five other universities—Ohio State, Michigan State, Arkansas, Villanova and Notre Dame—were also interested in the purchase, as well as the Philosophical Society of Philadelphia, she said.

EAT, DRINK, AND BE MERRY!

We all think the dieticians in the dining hall and in the College Shoppe have been extra good to us this year and responsible for the numerous forgotten diets and added avoidupois on campus. The demand for seconds and the empty dishes confirm this.

CONSIDER FIRST

When there are as many people living so closely together as there are on the campus, each person must feel responsible for the welfare, safety, and happiness of every other person as well as for herself.

So many of us like to sleep later than usual on those rare days when we have no 8:30's, on Sunday morning, or perhaps go to bed before lights-out. One could not expect fifteen hundred and ninety-nine students to tip-toe around so that one little sleep-addict might gain an extra forty times forty winks, but yelling, running, screaming, door-banging are inconsiderate. If you must blare your radio all over the campus, I move that you reconsider.

There are other things to consider, too. Pushing faculty or students off the sidewalks, going in or out of the Post Office the wrong way, walking in the middle of a road, all these are pet peeves and all exhibit lack of thought or consideration or both.

If you will look around in the College Shoppe after a rush hour, you would appreciate how much it would mean if each person were a little more considerate of others. It would be so easy for each individual to deposit her own trash in the receptacle provided for that purpose.

Our campus itself has a reputation for its tidy appearance but every so often someone "forgets" and casually drops a paper wrapper.

Consideration of roommates is an obvious fact. It is a fundamental requirement for most girls if two or more girls who plan to room together for a school year expect to be compatible. This might introduce the question of sharing the responsibility for cleaning the room, respect for sleep, study, property, courtesy, loyalty, and a host of other considerations.

On the whole, I think that this college is unusual in its tolerance, friendly attitudes, consideration, and neatness; there is always room for improvement.

Letters to the Bullet

The following letters have been received by the Bullet:

"The family of the late Willie Christine Catlett wishes to express their deepest appreciation for the many expressions of sympathy which they received in their time of sorrow. The flowers were beautiful, the telegrams, cards, and notes were comforting, and each house visit was greatly appreciated."

Sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Catlett
and James David Catlett

The family of Harriette Ann Cosby wish to thank the staff, student body and all those of Mary Washington College for their kindness and expressions of sympathy, at a time when it was deeply appreciated.

MESSAGE TO STUDENT BODY

How often one hears the statement, "The fastest years of my life were the four I spent in college." That statement, no doubt, comes from a devoted disciple of the familiar maxim, "One reaps what he sows." Speed-demon Time has always been the bane of existence for the busy man and four years is an alarmingly short time in which to sow all of one's hopes for the future. But the alert student can achieve maximum results in minimum time if he is converted soon enough in his college career by that same Voice of Experience who warns that "One reaps what he sows."

Maximum results are invariably the sequence of maximum effort. The first prerequisite for maximum results is hard work. The college student will never lack the opportunity of fulfilling that requirement. For his classwork there are always lessons to study, term papers to write, parallel books to read, reports to prepare. Indeed, there is no limit to the time and energy one may apply to the ceaseless process of learning. Learning being one of the major purposes of college, classwork and its preparation rightfully demand emphasis in college life.

For the well-rounded student however, work does not stop with class bells. Extra-curricular activities provide special opportunities for students to gain actual experience in their various fields of interest. For example, the journalistic student attends classes, but he experiences the thrill of applying what he learns by working with the college publications. The public speaking student realizes the values of his labors when he becomes a member of the debating club. Extra-curricular activities are then an important part of college life and as such require time and energy if at all worthwhile.

In addition to work, there is a time and place for play in college life. One must play with the same enthusiasm and eagerness with which one works. And like work, play must be purposeful. Recreation and health are of major importance to the successful college career. Play which achieves these aims can not be valueless. Sports and other outdoor activities such as nature field trips are health-giving and recreational reading is another example of purposeful play, reading those eleven-hundred books one has always wanted to and never found time to. There are many other ways of making play a definite contribution to college life.

With an eye toward the future the college student can not fail to realize the importance of sowing quality and quantity if the crop which he will reap is to be fertile. How to achieve both quality and quantity is the greatest problem in the college career, the answer to which problem is the key to success not only in the short sojourn at some alma mater but throughout life itself. The answer to this question is based on a keen sense of evaluation, a sense of discrimination between the important and the trivial. A sense of evaluation implies a budget of time and energy with emphasis where emphasis is due. This sense of evaluation will permit the student to reap maximum results from hard work and hard play. Then will he realize the truth of the statement, "Give to college the best that you have and the best will come back to you."

Summer Study Abroad

Foreign summer schools open to U. S. students are listed in Summer Study Abroad 1956, pamphlet published today by the Institute of International Education, 1 East 67th Street, New York City.

The 24-page leaflet lists 180 summer courses at educational institutions in 22 countries. It tells where to apply and gives helpful information on language requirements, admissions procedures, credits, living arrangements and costs, transportation, passports and visas, and scholarships. Early Application should be made for the few awards available.

European countries where American students may enroll for summer study are Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Eire, France, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland. The Institute itself administers summer school programs in Austria and Britain.

In Latin America courses are offered at schools in Cuba, the Dominican Republic, Guatemala, Mexico and Peru. There are also summer study opportunities at a number of Canadian universities and at the American University of Beirut in Lebanon.

The majority of courses offered to summer visitors are designed to give insight into the language, history and culture of the host country. In addition to such "civilization" courses, instruction is offered in art, music, world affairs and other subjects. There are often special courses for teachers of foreign languages. Most courses include excursions to nearby sites of interest.

Summer Study Abroad 1956 names only those courses which are sponsored by foreign educational institutions. Reference is made to other publications which discuss study tours, work camps, student travel or other opportunities for a foreign summer.

Copies of Summer Study may be obtained free from the Information Division of the Institute of International Education, in New York or from its regional offices in Chicago, Denver, Houston, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Washington. The Institute has information on other summer programs and offers general counseling services on study abroad.

By EBIE BREEDEN

What is an office, and what is expected of an officer? An office entails a position of leadership; an officer must exemplify characteristics of honor, loyalty, earnestness, and humility. Not everyone can be a leader; some must follow, but those who lead would not hold office were it not for the support of those behind her. Likewise, the followers must elect officers whom they will support—support with pride. There is a certain interdependence between officers and supporters. Officers represent the body and their responsibility is to those who do the "backing up".

A true leader must put the group and its welfare ahead of her own personal desires. A leader must be willing to give unselfishly of her time and energy. Leadership is no easy task, for with position comes responsibility, impartiality, friendliness, interest, patience, and above all, sincerity.

"Y" looks with pride upon the past year. Its leaders have been faithful and strong. With Installation at Convocation on April 4th, a new YWCA Cabinet will take its place on our campus. It is with confidence and pleasure that we announce the new Cabinet. May they "Hold High The Torch," remembering that they did not light its glow! May the new torch burn brightly that 1956-57 may have the support and interest which has meant so much to the outgoing Cabinet.

Junior Class Elects 1956 May Court

The Juniors have elected to the 1956 May Court Polly Smith, Vickie Majure, Audrey Neff, Ernestine MacLaughlin, Evelyn Nitti and Meredith Ann Puller.

A spinster, on her first visit to the big city, registered at a large hotel. The clerk at the desk succeeded in convincing her that it was best for her comfort and convenience to engage a whole section of rooms.

A while later as she was making herself at home in her living room, bedroom, bath, and kitchenette, she came upon a bottle of bitters standing on a table. With righteous indignation she called the desk clerk.

"Young man," she said angrily, "I've found a bottle of bitters in my rooms and I want it removed this instant!"

"I'm sorry, lady," the clerk replied. "You have to take the bitters with the suite."

SPORTS NEWS

The Goats won the 1956 Devil-Goat Basketball game by a one-point margin Thursday, March 15 on the Monroe court. Pressured all the way by the Devil team, it was all the Goats could do to maintain their lead in the game that ended in a 42-41 victory for them. Even the crowd felt the fever of excitement as their cheers mounted to the height reminiscent to that of the Holland tunnel.

The Goat squad consisted of: Carrie Lee Briscoe, Connie Crigler, Betty Davies, Pete Dallas Hermie Gross, Yvonne Lewis, Barbara Marrs, Joan Pillsbury, Harriet Ritchie, and B. J. Timmons. Darlene Grove had a foot injury and was unable to play.

The Devil team consisted of: Sybil Child, Lucile Fletcher, Bobbie Hardwicke, Paula Horton, Fay Lewis, Pete Lewis, Bonnie McCracken, Dottie Scott, Rae Smith, and Lea Smith.

The two team captains were Carrie Lee Briscoe for the Goats, and Dottie Scott for the Devils.

The Devils had some consolation as the Westmoreland Mortor Morons won the elimination tournament and became the "champions of the hill."

"The players, the captains, the timers and scorers, the officials and the entire basketball committee deserve nothing but praise for making this season the success that it has been," says Jane Oaks, R. A. Basketball Chairman. R. A. Council congratulates the Goats on their victory and reminds the Devils that Devil-Goat Day is just around the corner.

"Terrapin Tribune"

"It's a newspaper!" or so says Marcia Stambach, R. A. Council Terrapin president.

Actually, the Spring Terrapin Aquacade is using a newspaper as its theme in bringing, to you water-bug enthusiasts, a show of shows in the indoor pool April 19, 20, and 21. Admission is practically nothing. Will begin at 7:30 sharp. Don't miss the "Terrapin Tribune". (You might be in the gossip column!)

Bowling

The Round Robin Bowling Tournament will begin on Thursday, April 4th at 4:45 with approximately seven teams participating. Games will be played every Tuesday and Thursday until completion of the tournament. Watch the R.A. bulletin board for date on which your team plays.

Dorothy Dribble

Dear Miss Dribble,

I am a young engineer with a problem, although it is not the usual sort of problem for a young, up-coming engineer to have. You see, although I am forty years old, my parents feel that I have not matured enough to be out after eight o'clock in the evening. I do not mind this ruling on Wednesday night because I love to watch Disneyland anyway. However, on the other nights in the week my favorite TV programs ("Howdy Doody," for example) go off quite early. Recently this problem came to a head when a good movie came to town. It was The Littlest Outlaw (don't you just love Walt Disney movies?) Anyway, my parents refused to allow me to go. In my wrath I sneaked out of the house and went to the early show. My problem is this: how may I tactfully inform my parents of this misdeed?

Forlornly,

Fauntleroy

My Dear Fauntleroy,

Woe is me! How often have I mourned at these parent-child conflicts. I am deeply grieved, Fauntleroy, at your misconduct; you are certainly in the wrong. Always remember that "Parents know Best." Until you reach maturity, always trust the superior judgment of your elders. They have had more experience in this cruel world, my dear lad, and they can judge the movies which you should see. Repent and consider the error of your ways. By the way, why not buy a ladder?

Grievingly,
Miss Dribble

Dr. Milton Stansbury To Present Recital

Dr. Milton Stansbury, professor of French and Spanish at MWC, will be presented in a piano recital Tuesday, March 27 at 8:15 P. M. in duPont Little Theatre by the Fredericksburg Music Club. His program includes works by Bach, Mendelssohn, Brahms, Schumann, and Chopin. The student body is invited.

For the past week all the riders have been looking toward the skies with their fingers crossed and listening hopefully to the weather forecasts. The Gymkhana, called off last week because of the unseasonable snow, was re-scheduled for Sunday, March 25. With a little cooperation from the weather, Cavalry members planned to put on a show full of fun and excitement at Oak Hill Stables.

Eleven Hoof Prints members are studiously applying themselves to Common Sense Horsemanship in preparation for the theory test, which is part of the examination for a rating in riding with the National Section of Girls' and Women's Sports. They will be judged for their ratings here sometime in May. There is also a practical test composed of different movements and jumping in the ring and a cross-country ride.

Last spring we held our own rating center at Mary Washington for the first time. It was very successful in that nine of the ten girls who took the test received ratings. This year there will be seven girls trying to renew or raise the ratings they got last year, and four girls are attempting to get a rating for the first time. We hope that this year's center will prove to be just as successful as the one last year.

The girls trying for ratings are lucky in having Mr. Walther as their expert coach. Mr. Walther is a national judge for the N.S.G.W.S. Besides the center at Mary Washington, he will conduct and judge rating centers at Sweet Briar College and Steamboat Springs, Colorado, this summer.

YOU'RE ON THE RIGHT TRACK when you light up a Lucky, because Luckies taste better. Only fine tobacco—naturally good-tasting tobacco that's TOASTED to taste better—can give you taste like this. All of which goes to explain the Droodle above: Light-up time in caboose, as seen by halted motorist. Switch to Luckies yourself. You'll say they're the best-tasting cigarette you ever smoked.

Nine Months' Study In Scandinavian Countries For $800, Plus Travel

Early applications and reservations for study in the Scandinavian countries are advised by Aage Rosendal Nielsen, executive director of the Scandinavian Seminar for Cultural Studies, 127 East 73 St., New York 21, N. Y. Many students have expressed interest in the 1956-57 Seminar which includes nine month's study for a special fee of $800, including tuition, board and room, plus travel. The non-profit making institution offers studies in Denmark, Norway, or Sweden and 38 American students are now entered in 17 different folk schools. This is Scandinavian Seminar's seventh year.

The students take part in five weeks of orientation courses, live with families for six weeks and then attend the folk schools which are residential colleges where the principal emphasis is on the study of the humanities. Dr. Paul Scheid, professor of education at Oberlin College, Ohio, is the academic advisor to the program in Scandinavia. Juniors are now being admitted for full credit. Most students are under the graduate program.

Students acquire a knowledge of Scandinavian languages and culture and may carry out research in their particular fields of interest. Among the studies are relations, agriculture, the cooperatives, government, music, arts and crafts, the social sciences, history and literature.

Estimate for the nine month Seminar including fee of $800, trans-Atlantic travel from New York to Copenhagen and return, and fields trips in Scandinavia is approximately $1,350.

Infirmary Daze

It was the night before a big test; one of those nasty ones which had been assigned four weeks ago, but which I had never studied for, and I was getting panicky. I had had so much to do all day, and the bridge game had gone on so much longer than I had anticipated, that I just didn't get time to study. There was only one answer at a time like that; summoning my dramatic powers, I conveniently felt a cough tickle my throat, got a splitting headache, and a sore throat within the next ten minutes.

After enlisting the sympathetic support of my roommate (who had the same test, but who didn't play bridge) I struggled into the infirmary at eleven o'clock at night. (This was very well-timed—I looked so awful from a week of late nights that the nurse couldn't possibly refuse me.) My history book was tucked into my suitcase, just in case I recovered by morning.

I was introduced to my roommate for the night, a poor girl who actually was sick, and after a quick grapejuice, I tumbled into bed. The next morning I was awakened by a thermometer being thrust down my throat and a cheery "Good morning." I tried to get a bit more sleep, but soon my breakfast in bed was served to me. It was far superior to the usual morning fare, and I sat back to see what the rest of the day would bring.

First there were all sorts of people moving about the room, making happy comments about the weather and five-year old movies that I had heard of, but soon they went away and left me with a sleeping roommate and an uninteresting textbook to keep me company. After planning my wardrobe for the next two years, counting the number of cracks in the wall, and speculating on the arrival of the doctor, I began to be bored by my own company. I cautiously opened the door and sneaked down the hall to see who else was escaping from reality. At that moment the nurse arrived with my fruit juice, and so I unwillingly crawled back into bed to await her departure.

My poor roommate was evidently worrying the nurse, because she murmured something about putting her in a single room and left with a determined look. By this time I was ready to crawl up the walls from sheer boredom, so when a head was stuck into the room inviting me to a bridge game down the hall, I leaped out of bed with a triumphant yell.

When I came back an hour later I was just in time for lunch. My dramatic ability was evidently better than I would have guessed; I was feeling sort of sick by that time. I decided that it was psychological, but I still couldn't eat very much.

When the doctor arrived an hour later, he first examined my neighbor, and to my great horror, pronounced her the victim of measles! Measles! I had never had them—but no, it couldn't happen to me, I was going to Annapolis on Friday. To make a sad story short, I didn't go anywhere; not for a long time—of all the rest homes . . . it didn't do me a bit of good!

At 10 a. m. the telephone at the reception desk of a large hotel rang frantically.

"What time does your bar open?" someone asked.

"At twelve noon, sir," answered the clerk.

At 11 o'clock it rang again.

"Say, Mac, when dosh your bar open up?" asked the same voice again.

At twelve noon, sir." This time the clerk was emphatic.

At 11:45 the telephone rang again.

"Shay, fren, please tell me when yer bar opens up."

At 12 noon sir," the clerk answered. "But I'm afraid that in your condition you won't be allowed in."

"In? Friend, I wanna get out!"

Elmer, who was 13 and puzzled over girls, was talking to Joe.

"I've walked her to school three times, I've carried her books, and twice I've bought her sodas. Now do you think I ought to kiss her?" Joe thought and said, "Now, you've done enough for her."
